MEET KATRINA

Have you ever been consumed by love? I'm not talking about the fairy-tale version where the prince rescues the damsel in distress, and they live happily ever after. I mean the kind of love that takes over your entire being, the kind that seeps into your bones and becomes a part of you.

That's the kind of love I had. It was messy, and complicated, and so, so painful. It tore me apart, piece by piece, until I was nothing but a shell of who I used to be. But at the same time, it was beautiful and exhilarating. It made me feel alive in a way I never had before.

I fell in love with two men. One was my safe haven, my steady rock, and the other was my forbidden fruit, my reckless passion. It was a battle between my heart and my head, between what was right and what felt right. And in the end, I lost both.

Looking back, I see all the warning signs I missed. The red flags that were waving in front of my face, the caution signs I ignored, and the dead-end roads I kept walking down. But in the moment, I couldn't see anything but them.

M. JAY GRANBERRY

This is the story of how I fell in love with two men, and how it destroyed everything I knew to be true.
